Luther advises Capnamic and Main Incubator on investment in Circula

Capnamic Ventures and Main Incubator have jointly invested a seven-digit sum in the Berlin travel expenses start-up Circula. Luther provided legal advice to both investors in this financing round.

Founded in 2017, Software-as-a-Service company Circula offers an app-based solution for automated expense and travel expense accounting for German companies. With this all-in-one solution, the startup provides a digital alternative to the previous accounting process.

In the past, Finparx and a number of business angels have already invested in the startup. Now Circula receives a seven-digit amount from Capnamic Ventures and Main Incubator. A team of Luther Lawfirm led by partner Philipp Dietz and senior associate Fabian Mimberg advised both investors.

Capnamic Ventures is a venture capitalist founded in 2013 and invests in both the B2B and B2C sectors.

Main Incubator is the research and development unit and subsidiary of Commerzbank, which invests primarily in technological solutions of interest to Commerzbank and its customers.
